DIED IN UNUSUAL WAY.

Wagon Containing Stove and Fire Overturns—Driver Burned to Death.

Last Wednesday morning a man drove into Jasper in a covered spring wagon with a blind mate and a gray horse. He said his name was Smith and that he was on his way to his sister's 15 miles northwest of Nevada, and that he had started from a point in Oklahoma near Coffeyville, Kans. He had a small stove with a few quilts, blankets, etc., to keep out the cold. A horse had kicked him on the knee a few days before, rendering him almost helpless. He had no money or food for himself or team. He found his way to John Ward's, who gave him his dinner, fed his team and took him and his team down to a livery barn where he spent the night.

Dr. Knott's attention was called to the man's condition, and the doctor dressed the wound and gave Smith medicine. A contribution of $6.80 was taken up and given the man, and he insisted upon proceeding on his journey Christmas day regardless of the icy condition of the roads.

He got within two or three miles of Lamar when his wagon overturned on an uncovered grade and he was unable to rescue himself. When travelers along the road discovered the accident, the man was dead, having been almost burned up.

Jasper-Galena Basket Ball Game.

A number of very good basket ball players from Galena, Kans., came over Saturday night and made a brave effort to win a game from the Giants, but the best they could do was 9 points against the 23 scored by the local boys.

The Jayhawkers started out well and scored more than half their total in the first few minutes of the first half. The Giants struck their stride before the first half was finished and in the second half the Galena boys had a chance.

During the first half Otto Owings, one of the largest forwards at present in captivity, jammed his enemy home in a Galena boy's eye, causing a cessation of hostilities until the latter regained his eyesight at least to some extent. Another Kansas man injured himself seriously in a fumble for the ball with the Giants' husky little guard, Fred Goddard.

The Giants played Owings and Lester Goddard, forwards; Frank Steiner, center; Fred Goddard and Harry Tallman, guards.

Company I team of Webb City will be here Friday night this week, and Liberal will play here the 15th.

The Giants are trying to arrange a game with Mulberry, Kansas.

Light Plant Took Fire.

The electric light building took fire Saturday morning by way of a defective fuse. The building is a wooden structure and the fire had a good start on the south side near the chimney when discovered.

H. F. Pitts, with a patent fire-extinguisher, arrived soon after the first alarm and probably saved the light company a good many dollars and the town much inconvenience by promptly stopping the spread of the flames.

Ed Porter and Will Redmond did some lively work and a good service by rolling out a barrel of gasoline, a barrel of coal oil and two empty gasoline barrels which were within a few feet of the flames.

The light plant was in operation as usual Saturday night, and besides a hole in the wall and a damaged roof the light company's only loss was about $60 worth of insulated wire.

Forage Poisoning.

In another column of this issue The News publishes an article on "Forage Poisoning" written by the State Veterinarian of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture.

Every farmer should read this article. There is hardly a farmer in the state who has not lost one or more head of good stock from the disease and in many cases the loss has been considerable.

"Copy" for Old Friends' Edition Coming in.

Letters from Lynn Monroe of Montrose, Colo., and Mrs. D. B. Fisher of West Butte, Cal., and others from different points have been received for the Old Friends Edition of The News, which will be published about January 15.

The letters that have come in are full of interesting "news" for our readers and we know they will be appreciated. We hope to receive many others like them in the next two weeks.

Let us again urge readers of the paper who live at distant points to write us at once and let their old Jasper County friends know how they are getting on and where they are.

Jasper's Sick Roll.

Mrs. O. E. Roberts is gaining slowly in strength, news that her many friends will receive with pleasure.

Wm. Busby, who has been confined to his bed, is recovering and will be about in a few days.

There is little change in Mr. Jackson's condition. He rallies occasionally, but his reserve strength is limited. Mrs. Jackson has been confined to her bed the past week with grip.

Joseph Frick took to his bed last week and is not expected to recover. Mr. Frick is 80 years old and has been getting about with unusual activity for one of his age until a week or so ago.

Mrs. Susanna Holdeman was stricken with paralysis last Sunday. She lies very low with her children in close attendance. Mrs. Holdeman is 77 years of age.

H. F. Hughes is quite ill again with diabetes together with blood poison in his foot. His condition is causing his friends much alarm.

Now I Lay Me

When our twilight-sleep, wee baby is wrapped snug and warm in bed.

With my arms wrapped close about her.

And her sleepy golden head

Lying warm against my bosom, then I prompt her and in low

Baby tones, while music comes, softly swinging to and fro.

Soon to soothe sweetest perfumes

Through the darkness, and to keep

Body of us in God's own mercy, comes her "Lays me down to sleep."

"But my eyes ain't sleepin'—mamma—play the fandry's soul to keep—

Mamma, does you love your girlie—

does you wish me'd due to sleep—

And if me dies before me wakes—mamma,

the loves you a peck?—

Me plays the fandry's soul to keep—

dot my arms about your's neck!—

And this me asks for Jesus sake—mamma,

kiss your girlie—

But your's girl ain't sleepin', mamma, not a titty bit—Amen!"

Then she snuggles closer to me—or I

clasp her to my heart,

And I kiss her foiled ringlets, then

her arms half fall apart,

And her deep and rhythmic breathing seems to tell that she's asleep.

And in turn I pray to heaven that the Lord will watch and keep

My wee girl in his own keeping—then,

her small arms 'round my neck

Quickly tighten and she whispers:

"Mamma, how much is a peck?"

WILL KEEP SERUM ON HAND

Supply for Jasper County to Aid in Fighting Hog Cholera.

When Dr. J. W. Conway, veterinarian at the state university, was here last week he made arrangements for sending to Carthage a supply of hog cholera serum which would always be handy for Jasper county residents and thus be obtained on short notice. It is supplied here at the same rate that it would be if ordered specially by mail. The supply has been sent to John Parker, member of the state board of agriculture, who resides at the south edge of Carthage on the Grand avenue road. This supply will be renewed as fast as there is a demand for it as long as hog cholera in the county gives cause for keeping up the supply.

This will no doubt often prove a great convenience to farmers who find their hogs diseased and want a remedy quick.—Carthage Press.

Family Reunion and Christmas Dinner.

An enjoyable Christmas day was spent at the home of J. W. Edwards and wife, south of town. The family, consisting of ten children and nine grandchildren, were all present except one son from Dallas, Texas, who arrived on the evening train too late for the fine dinner. After the dinner the family gathered in the library where Mr. Edwards presented each son and daughter with a deed to a town lot in Carthage. These were considered fine presents by all as the lots are in such good locations, four being in the Hagan addition on Olive Street and the others in the south side addition on the railroad. Promptly at three o'clock the family entered the parlor where a lovely Christmas tree was bending with all kinds of nice presents. Santa was not present, but no one seemed to mind him. It is rather unusual to see such a large family and all able to enjoy such a Christmas at home. There were in all 25 at the old home for dinner.

Chandler & Son's Creations Satisfied.

Ben Webb received from several congratulatory letters from several of the principal residents of the city this morning. Chandler & Son, of which Mr. Webb was the manager. Mr. Webb paid the visitors a little over 50 percent and they were highly pleased with his management of business.

Revival Meeting.

Rev. M. L. Bradburn of Odessa, Mo., will begin a revival meeting at the Presbyterian Church next Sunday. He will be accompanied by his daughter, who will conduct the music. The public is invited to attend the meetings and cooperate with those in charge, to the end that the church and community may be benefited thereby.

An Interesting Address.

Rev. Wm. K. Chatten delivered an instructive and interesting address Sunday night on the causes leading to the present European war, pointing out some of the probable industrial, geographical and political results that will follow. He made use of a large map in the course of his address.
